Jeremy Corbyn in Glasgow to campaign against the Trade Union Bill

Jeremy Corbyn will be outlining Labour's outright opposition to the Trade Union Bill at an STUC organised rally in the Royal Concert Hall in Glasgow this Thursday.

Jeremy of course has a proud track record of arguing for rights in the workplace and supporting TU campaigns. And of course before becoming, before becoming an MP he was an organiser with NUPE.

The Bill shows the Tories at their most hypocritical as Jeremy put it to the TUC " It is quite interesting how the Tories champion deregulation wherever regulation is ever mentioned. How many times have we heard that, Ministers for Deregulation, Departments for Deregulation, Ministers who will tear up all regulations? But one thing they really want to regulate is organised labour and the trade unions in this country. I think that sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, don't you? "

Unions to the fore at Scottish Labour Conference

 Trade unions and Trade union priorities were well to the fore at the recent conference in Perth.

As Richard Leonard of the GMB put it during a rousing celebration of Keir Hardie's centenary "The Labour Party began as the political wing of the Labour Movement - we remain the political wing of the Trade Union movement." This view was echoed in Kezia Dugdale's leaders speech   "I want to thank our brothers and sisters in the union movement for standing by us, in good times and bad. Your values are our values. We are, and always will be, the party of working people, a proud party of trade unionists.

And it wasn't just the speeches. In the policies adopted Trade Union issues were well to the fore. From Community's motion to save Scottish Steel to Unite's opposition to TTiP " A Scottish Labour Government will work will take action to narrow wealth and income inequality, not just increasing income at the bottom" was the commitment in the Policy Forum Report. Other commitments included support for a publicly owned railway, the adoption of an Ethical Care Charter and treating energy efficiency as a national infrastructure project.

The Trade Union Bill was roundly denounced in a motion moved by UNISON's Gordon MacKay who stated his opposition was such that if necessary he would take part in next year's Conference via Video Link from Barlinnie.

We may face considerable challenges but the conference gave us an excellent base of ideas and proposals we can take to electorate in the months ahead.

The Peoples Post is the CWU's campaign to standards for consumers and workers in our mail service. It has six principles.

1. New and Stronger Legislation to Safeguard Daily Deliveries
2. An Overhaul of Regulation to End Ofcom's Push for a Race to the Bottom
3. The Government to Retain a Public Voice in the Company
4. Fair Employment Standards with the Living Wage as a Legal Minimum

in the Postal Sector
5. Protection for Consumers - New Products and Services and safeguarding access to Post Offices
6. The Establishment of a Workers Trust in Royal Mail that gives staff a Meaningful Collective Voice
